Biographical Note

Hans Peter Hansen was born on November 9, 1888 in Vejen, Denmark to Jens Nikolaj Hansen and Ane Kathrine Bergitte Madsen. Hans had three older siblings: Kathrine, Karen, and Mads. The family moved to the city when Hans was eight years old, and his father had a bicycle shop there. Hans attended a private school called the Danish Latin School, and when he was eighteen, he went into the Danish Royal Guard. Hans signed up for officers’ camp and then became a Corporal, training the new boys. During his time in the Royal Guard, Hans got to know Crown Prince Christian, who later became King Christian X, Prince Gustav, and a Danish count. When he was twenty-five years old, he decided to immigrate to America because he had no trade in Denmark. Hans settled in Tacoma, WA, where a friend of his father's lived. Hans took night school at Franklin High School to improve his English, and in November 1915, he and a friend, John Hansen, opened an auto-repair shop, H.P. Hansen & Co. At first, Hans only worked on Model T Fords but later expanded and began working on Model A's as well. Hans met his wife, Clara, at the Danish Young People's Society, and was married in 1916. They had two children, Bergitte and Margaret. In Tacoma, Hans has been involved with church, Commercial Club, Danish Society, and the Leif Erikson League. In 1980, the Leif Erikson League honored Hans as the oldest Danish immigrant on Danish Day during Scandinavian Days in Tacoma. Another special occasion for Hans occurred on the 250th anniversary of the Royal Guard in the U.S. At that time, Hans received a special invitation from the Danish consulate to be his guest and have an audience with the Queen of Denmark. Hans' heritage has been very important to him, and he continues to keep in touch with all of his relatives there.

Administrative Information

Custodial History

The Oral History collection project was started during an experimental course on Scandinavian Women in the Pacific Northwest. Students in the course were encouraged to interview women and learn about their experiences as immigrants to the United States. The project was continued and expanded with support from the president's office and by grants from the L.J. Skaggs and Mary C. Skaggs Foundation, from the Joel E. Ferris Foundation and the Norwegian Emigration Fund of the Royal Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The project was directed by Dr. Janet E. Rasmussen. The collection was transferred to the Archives and Special Collections Department.

Processing Note
The interview was conducted by Morrene Nesvig using a cassette recorder. A research copy was also prepared from the original. To further preserve the content of the interview, it is now being transferred to compact disc. We deliberately did not transcribe the entire interview because we want the researchers to listen to the interviewee’s own voice. The transcription index highlights important aspects of the interview and the tape counter numbers noted on the Partial Interview Transcription are meant as approximate finding guides and refer to the location of a subject on the cassette/CD. The recording quality is good.

The collection was transcribed by Mary Sue Gee, Julie Peterson and Becky Husby.

| 51, side 1   | 062/11: GROWING UP IN DENMARK
They lived in a farming area. The town was called Vejen. They moved to the city when he was eight years. He talks about travel difficulties in those days and the resulting dialects that developed. |
| 51, side 1   | 074/12:
Arrived US April 14, 1914. He went alone, but two friends were aboard. |
| 51, side 1   | 080: REASONS FOR LEAVING DENMARK
Didn't have a trade. |
| 51, side 1   | 082: BICYCLING
He had a bicycle with one big wheel and one little wheel. His father sold bicycles. He talks some about the evolution of the bicycle. Brother first had a motorcycle in about 1904. Hans got one later this was the second motorcycle in the area. These were German made. They had pedals on them too because they weren't very powerful. He worked fixing bicycles for a period for his father. |
| 51, side 1   | 101: SCHOOL DAYS IN DENMARK
Went to a private school this was called the Danish Latin School, which was a prepatory school for the university. Denmark had a mandatory draft and Hans went in at age eighteen. Never seen the Royal Guard. This was a special group. You had to be 6 foot tall to get into it. There were many wealthy and good citizen families involved in this group. They had a five-month service in boot camp. At this time numbers were drawn to determine whether you stayed or went home. These numbers could be sold. Hans signed up for officers training. |
| 51, side 1   | /13:
This lasted for seven months. For the next five months, after that he was a Corporal training the new boys. The commander of the Royal Guard at this time was the Crown Prince Christian who later was King Christian X. He had a farewell party at the prince’s home in Lyngby. The castle’s name was Sorgenfri. At this time, Prince Christian was being advanced in rank. He was a Colonel in the Royal Guard then he became a general and moved over to the infantry in Aarhus in Jylland. Christian loved the guard. Hans had guard duty with the royal family when they were in residence in Copenhagen and in Frederiksborg. The day they left. Crown Prince Christian, his wife… |
| 51, side 1   | /01:
Alexandrine, and their two boys, Knud and Frederik stood by the gate when they walked out. The Crown Prince cried. Then they (Hans) took over the Guard as Corporal of the Guard at the Frederiksborg Castle. Checked the castle twice during the night. He talks about the castle. They ran into Frederik and Knud. They had just gotten new bicycles. They gave them their first lesson on the bicycle. He talks about some other experiences of working as Corporal of the Guard. Hans was in the service seventeen months. They had a marksmanship competition and Hans was the best marksman in his company and received a cup from the future King of Denmark. Talks about like in the military. They got two loaves of bread a week and one Danish Krone a day. He talks about their barracks which had no indoor plumbing or kitchens. The armory where he was at was part of the Rosenborg castle. Hans traded his bread and money for food at the YMCA which was nearby. Met a man at the YMCA who started questioning him about the royal guard and it was Prince Gustav of Denmark who was the brother of the Crown Prince. Gustav had a lot of work to do to lose weight to get into the guard. Later, Gustav was in his company and so was a cousin of Gustav’s. Talks about Gustav’s training. He wasn’t quite strong enough and others helped him. Gustav told Hans about his life. He said that Frederiksborg castle was like heaven. Hans’ sidekick in the Royal Guard was a Danish count. They stayed friends for years.

He was 25 years old when he came. Hans had no trade. His father wanted him to take over the shop. Hans had a friend in Johannesburg who had a job mining (in South Africa), but this area went under martial law so they couldn’t work. A friend of Han’s dad came to Denmark for a visit so Hans decided to come here instead. This man was building a girls reform school in the Tacoma area. Hans came on the 14th of April.

Sailed from Copenhagen. Ticket about 200 Kroner. Went to Oslo (Kristiania, Norway). He and a friend got off the ship and went to Holmenkollen. Then they took off to England were they ran into a terrific storm. They were locked below for three days with no ventilation. They started getting acquainted with other young people from Norway, Sweden, and Finland. There was a person playing the accordion and they would dance on the deck. The trip took two weeks.

Talks about passing inspection. One girl looked pregnant, if she was she would have been sent home.

Train had a stove at one end and people could cook on it. Only knew how to say doughnuts and coffee at the restaurants. So that was all he ate on the trip. The trip took seven days.

Train stopped at the depot on Puyallup Ave. There was a girl who got off the train who he hadn't seen eating the entire trip. There was no one there to greet her, but she had the address. Hans fixed her up with a car. Hans went and got a shave. He had trouble explaining where he wanted to go, language difficulties. He thought "streetcar" sounded like "street map. He finally got on the streetcar and made his way to the house, but no one was there. There was a ball game going on, he thought the Eriksons would be there. He couldn't understand the game or find the Eriksons. It started raining. He went to find something to eat. He went to a saloon, (he didn't know what a saloon was).
Then he had to find a room for the night. Went to a Swedish boardinghouse.
The next morning he found a place that sold coffee and doughnuts. Went back to the Eriksons. There still wasn't anybody home. He went to the neighbors and asked where they were. They had moved a couple of blocks away. Mrs.
Erikson had a sister Irene Minhard (?), she spoke German and hardly any English. Luckily Hans knew some German. She took him over to the Petersons were arrangements had been made for him to stay.

530/03: HIS EXPERIENCES AT THE METHODIST CHURCH
This was with Charlie, John, and Mathia Peterson. Heard a Danish-Norwegian Methodist preacher named Nelson. He spoke Norwegian. Charlie started going don his knees for prayer. They never did this in the Lutheran Church. He was introduced to the pastor after the service and they became good friends.
This pastor's son was Sirus Nelson (?) an architect. He was the architect for Hans' home. Pastor Nelson moved to Oregon and later back again.

009/05: H.P. HANSEN AND CO.
In November 1915, Hans and his friend Jon Hansen started this shop together.
Not enough business so his friend returned to his previous job with McNeill and Libby; fishing in Alaska for awhile. Business built up. They worked on only Model T Fords. He rented the shop on Mt. Tahoma Ave. for $15 a month. Later

<td>IMPORTANCE OF DANISH HERITAGE One of the big things of his life. He’s very proud of being Danish. He’d rather be called Norsk than Swedish. In Denmark in 1908, Hans celebrated the 250th anniversary of the Royal Guard. The Royal Theater gave a performance. He talks about a Danish opera singer who became president of the Royal Guard Association in the US. Hans and his wife celebrated the 300th anniversary of the Royal Guard in the U.S. He got an invitation from Tage Hansen in Copenhagen to celebrate the 319th anniversary of the Royal Guard. Was introduced to the Queen again. 250th anniversary of the Royal Guard in the US. Received tickets to attend the celebration from the Danish Association. Gave them to his daughter and son-in-law. He hadn’t driven on the freeway for sometime. The dinner was in Olympia. About 10 days before the Queen and her husband came, Hans got a special invitation from the Danish consulate to be his guest and to have an audience with the Queen before the dinner. The governor of Washington state at that time, Daniel Evans, was there at the meeting with the Queen. Several Jews were there. They honored the country</td>
