Historical Note

The Pacific Northwest Pollution Control Association, originally the Northwest Conference on Stream Pollution, was formed on May 11, 1934 in Eugene, Oregon. The organization held its first annual meeting in Lewiston, Idaho on May 15, 1935. The name of the Conference was changed to Pacific Northwest Pollution Control Association in 1959.

From its initial meeting in 1934, the organization has grown steadily from 20 members to over 1,200 in 1975. The organization has experienced a number of name changes during its history which indicated the changing attitudes and concerns toward the problem of pollution. At the first annual meeting in 1935, the membership changed the organizational name from the Northwest Conference on Stream Pollution to the Pacific Northwest Sewage Works Association. The scope of the organization broadened in 1951 when it became the Pacific Northwest Sewage and Industrial Waste Association.

Content Description

The Pacific Northwest Pollution Control Association records consists primarily of communications by the organization. This includes newsletters dating as late as 1991 and materials for annual meetings.
