Biographical Note

Wesley Wehr was a painter, paleobotanist, correspondent, autograph collector, friend and champion of Northwest artists. He was born in 1929 in Everett, Washington, and grew up in Seattle. He attended Queen Anne High School and the University of Washington, where he studied musical composition and earned a bachelor's (1951) and a master's (1953) degree. While a student at the University, Wehr became acquainted with Mark Tobey when, for a short period, he instructed Tobey in musical composition. Their friendship continued throughout Tobey's lifetime and Tobey encouraged Wehr's development as an artist. Over the years, Wehr developed friendships with numerous other Northwest artists, such as Morris Graves and Guy Anderson. While at the University of Washington, Wehr also studied poetry with Theodore Roethke and became acquainted with Susanne Langer, who was a visiting professor of philosophy in 1953. His friendship with Langer also lasted to the end of her life.

During the mid-1950s, while working as a watchman at the Henry Gallery, Wehr began to draw with pen and ink. In the 1960s he turned his creative efforts to painting, beginning with small landscapes in colored crayon. His first exhibit was at the "Artists of the Puget Sound" show at the Henry Gallery in 1961. The next year he was included in the Northwest Annual for the first time. His first one-man show was at the Otto Seligman Gallery in 1967 and his first exhibit outside the region was in 1968 as a part of "Selections From the Personal Collection of Morris Graves" at the Humboldt Gallery in San Francisco. He received international recognition in 1976 with a show at the Gallerie Rosenau in Bern, Switzerland and in 1977 at the Gallerie D'Art Modern group show in Munich. In 1980 the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria presented a retrospective of his work. In addition to his miniature paintings, Wehr is known for his line drawings of imaginary figures, sometimes called "monster drawings." Wehr has also served as guest curator and consultant to the Henry Gallery and other galleries.

Wehr's longtime friendship with the Seattle artist Helmi Juvonen (1903-85) also dates from his time at the Henry Gallery. He provided aid and encouragement to Juvonen, particularly in the later years of her life when two retrospective shows which he curated brought her increased, though belated, recognition. He was also responsible for persuading Juvonen to donate her papers to the Libraries' Manuscripts Collection.

Another of Wehr's interests is paleontology. In 1978 he was appointed affiliate curator of paleobotany at the Burke Museum on the University of Washington campus, where he has pursued studies of the region near the Ginkgo Petrified Forest and, later, a dig near Republic, Washington. In 1980 he discovered a species of extinct fern which was named Osmunda Wehrii for him.

Wesley Wehr began collecting musician's autographs as a high school student. Throughout his life, Wehr has sought the acquaintance of persons he admires and has sustained friendships with Susanne Langer, Elizabeth Bishop, and others through years of correspondence. As a lifelong resident of the Pacific Northwest, he has also collected documentation on the cultural history of the region. This interest has spurred him not only to collect the papers of artists in the region, but also to record and preserve his own experiences and observations through his published and unpublished writings. Examples of this effort are Wehr's "letters to Jose" (Joseph Newland) and to Susanne Langer, which are actually diary entries commenting upon the Seattle arts scene and other topics. Some of the letters to Jose were never actually mailed.

Wesley Wehr died in 2004.

2.01 cubic feet (3 boxes)

Scope and Content: Correspondence from Wesley Wehr to Joseph Newland. The correspondence documents Wehr's career as an artist and a writer, and as a paleobotanist at the Burke Museum, as well as daily events in his life. Some of the items sent to Newland are photocopies of other correspondence received or sent by Wehr. Also included are drafts of writings by Wehr, publicity for his books and artwork, and a small amount of correspondence to Newland from others, including Elizabeth Bayley Willis and Mary Randlett.

Restrictions on Access: Open to all users.

Restrictions on Use: Restrictions may exist on copying, quotation, or publication. Contact Special Collections, University of Washington Libraries for details.
