Biographical Note

Tom McCall (1913-1983) was born in Egypt, Mass., to Henry McCall and Dorothy Lawson McCall, who moved to Portland in 1909 and soon after to a ranch near Prineville on the Crooked River in central Oregon. McCall was graduated from the University of Oregon with a degree in journalism in 1936. He started his career in journalism at the Moscow, Idaho, News Review and subsequently worked at The Oregonian and for KGW radio in Portland. McCall served in the U.S. Navy from 1944 to January 1946 as a war correspondent.

McCall was married to Audrey Owen in 1939, and they had two sons, Thomas, Jr. (Tad), born in 1944, and Samuel, born in 1949. After his war service, McCall returned to Portland, where he hosted a nightly radio talk show on KEX. He continued to work in broadcasting until 1964, using his work as a way to keep in touch with public issues and as a forum for his own ideas. McCall started his political career by joining the Young Republicans. He came to the attention of Gov. Douglas McKay, who hired him as an assistant in 1949, a position he held until 1952. McCall ran for a U.S. Senate seat in 1954, losing to Edith Green. He ran for Oregon Secretary of State and won, serving from 1965 to 1967.

McCall then served two terms as Governor of Oregon (1967-1975). He was a popular governor, largely because of his attention to public concerns and his determination to preserve quality of life in Oregon for future generations. He was best known for promoting the nation's first Bottle Bill, cleaning up rivers by controlling industrial pollution, promoting land use controls, and zoning beach areas to preserve public access. McCall also made famous the quote, "Visit, But Don't Stay," a catchphrase intended to keep Oregon's growth at a moderate pace. His words backfired, however, and Oregon population grew rapidly during his two terms.

After leaving the governor's office in January 1975, he returned to KATU television in Portland as a news analyst and traveled around the nation supporting bottle bills in other states. In 1978, he tried once again for the governor's office but lost the Republican primary to Victor Atiyeh. McCall died in 1983.

Content Description

Images in this collection document the family of Tom Lawson McCall (1913-1983) and his career in journalism, radio and television broadcasting, politics, and the Oregon state government, most notably his two terms as Governor, 1966-1975. In addition to photographs of McCall, the collection includes images of his wife, Audrey, and various family members, including his parents, Samuel W. and Dorothy Lawson McCall, among others; and numerous local, state, and national politicians and government officials, including but not limited to Victor Atiyeh, Neil Goldschmidt, Edith Green, Mark O. Hatfield, Douglas McKay, Wayne Morse, Richard Neuberger, Bob Packwood, Oswald West, and Wendell William Wyatt.

In addition to photographs that came from Tom and Audrey McCall, the collection includes images from the Oregon Journal collection and others that were made for the biography, Fire at Eden's Gate, published by the Oregon Historical Society Press. The Oregon Journal photographs are identifiable by the newsprint captions attached to the verso, and the photographs from the book are marked "FAEG" on the verso. Photographers represented in this collection include Allen J. DeLay, Frank L. Allman, Alfred A. Monner, Nick Mills, and Carl E. Vermilya, among many others.

The photographs in the collection range from small black-and-white and color snapshots to oversize mounted and framed images or collages. Most of the photographs are loose, individual items, but the collection also includes seven albums assembled for various governors' conferences that Tom and Audrey McCall attended or hosted, as well as a few negatives and slides.

Processing Note

Initial processing incorporated photographs from the Oregon Journal newspaper held by the Oregon Historical Society and reproductions of photographs from many sources made for the biography, Fire at Eden's Gate, published by the Oregon Historical Society Press. These additions were retained in the collection during final arrangement and description.

The collection originally included many duplicate images, which were removed. Albums were removed from damaging bindings for preservation, but the album pages were retained in original order. Most framed photographs were unframed for preservation.

Separated Materials
