Biographical Note

Addison Crandall Gibbs, known as the Wartime Governor of Oregon, was born in East Otto, New York, July 9, 1825. He came to Oregon in 1852 and promptly secured a donation land claim at the mouth of the Umpqua River. In 1853, he volunteered for service in the Rogue River Indian War, later serving as a commissioner for the Rogue River Indian Claims. From 1853-1857, Addison served the Umpqua district as a representative in the territorial legislature and as a customs collector.

Gibbs married Margaret M. Wilkins in 1854, while on a trip to New York, then returned to the Umpqua area in 1858. In that year, the Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs made their home in Portland, where Addison began his law practice with George H. Williams. In 1860 he was elected to the state legislature representing Multnomah County. When the Union Republican Party was formed, Gibbs was one of the first to join. He was the party's nominee for governor in 1862 and won the election. He was a strong Union supporter who raised volunteers from around the state for the Union army and was also instrumental in founding the Union League, which opposed the pro-southern Knights of the Golden Circle.

When his term of office ended in 1866, Governor Gibbs returned to his private law practice until 1872, when, by order of President Ulysses S. Grant, he became the U. S. Attorney for the state of Oregon.

Returning again to private life and business, he served on the board of Willamette University and traveled throughout the U.S. and Europe. While on a business trip to London, the Governor fell ill with pneumonia and died on December 29, 1886.

Content Description

The Addison Crandall Gibbs collection contains a large quantity of correspondence, both personal and official, from other individuals to the Governor. Also included is a group of documents from Gibbs's tenure as an appointed or an elected official.

Boxes 1 and 2 are correspondence, arranged alphabetically, to the Governor on various topics dealing with his time as a lawyer, businessman, governor, and Union supporter. The letters range from the late 1850s to his death in 1886. Box 3, while containing two folders of family correspondence, primarily contains documents pertaining to Gibbs's official duties. This includes requests for pardons, Rogue River Commission Claims, the Union League, and public lands information. Box 4 contains two volumes belonging to Gibbs. Volume 1 is a scrapbook of newspaper clippings which Gibbs compiled and commented upon while he was staying in London in 1885. Volume 2 is a letterpress copy book containing letters dealing exclusively with state lands.

Correspondents include: Benjamin Alvord, Jesse Applegate, Asahel Bush, George Byron Currey, Matthew Paul Deady, Benjamin Franklin Dowell, John Miller Drake, James Webster, Perit Huntington, Reuben F. Maury, James Willis Nesmith, William Henry Seward, Leland Stanford, George Henry Williams, and others. Subject include: the Oregon State Militia, the Oregon State Penitentiary, Indian affairs, internal secession movement, land grants, railroad construction, Union League, and other public affairs.
